Denver Attractions

An Ideal Climate

The Metro Denver area is situated on the high plains at the base of the Rocky Mountains. Moderate temperatures, low levels of humidity and abundant sunshine provide an ideal climate for year-round activities. In fact, the area has more annual days of sunshine than either San Diego or Miami Beach.

Winter storms are normally shortlived, and snow melts rapidly. However, the nearby mountains and ski resorts receive significant annual snowfall, allowing residents to enjoy the best of both worlds—a mild climate for hiking, biking and a variety of outdoor activities, as well as a nearby climate for snow skiing, snow-boarding and other mountain activities.

Metro Denver's climate is best described as "semi-arid," averaging a little less than 16 inches of precipitation annually.

Culture

Culture abounds and thrives in metro Denver—a place for energetic minds. The area's diverse population supports culture through the Scientific and Cultural Facilities District (SCFD), a unique regional funding system for venues such as The Denver Performing Arts Complex and the Denver Art Museum. Each year, the SCFD distributes millions of dollars in tax funds to local arts and culture organizations.

Several of the region's finest cultural venues are undergoing significant expansions. The Denver Zoo's newest exhibit, "Predator Ridge," recreates a portion of the Samburu National Reserve in Kenya and features 14 African species of mammals, birds and reptiles.

Downtown's Denver Performing Arts Complex, already the second-largest arts center in the nation, will completely restore the historical Denver Auditorium Theatre, transforming it into a 2,400-seat showpiece.

The Denver Art Museum completed a $90 million expansion project that doubled the museum's size. The new building is designed by world-famous architect Daniel Libeskind, the architect chosen to design the World Trade Center site.

A favorite summertime activity for many locals is catching a concert at Red Rocks Amphitheater, the world-famous outdoor music venue in the foothills of the Rockies. This natural sandstone venue features a $16 million visitor center.

Sports City, U.S.A.

Metro Denver is truly a "sports city," with the fans and facilities to prove it. In the past 10 years, new facilities have been constructed for the area's major sports franchises. More than six million fans attend sporting events in the area each year.

Some of the newest sports venues in the nation are in Denver.

- Coors Field—home to the Colorado Rockies (baseball)
- Dick's Sporting Goods Park—home to the Colorado Rapids (soccer)
- INVESCO Field at Mile High—home to the two-time world champion Denver Broncos (football), and Denver Outlaws (lacrosse)
- Pepsi Center—home to the Denver Nuggets (basketball), two-time Stanley Cup champion Colorado Avalanche (hockey), the Colorado Mammoth (lacrosse) and the Colorado Crush (arena football).

All four new sports venues are located near downtown Denver and have helped to revitalize the area.

Also, metro Denver hosts some of the world's top sporting events, such as the 2005 NCAA Final Four, the 2005 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship, and the 2008 NCAA Frozen Four Hockey Tournament.

Shopping and Dining

Numerous shopping and dining options are located across the metro Denver was ranked as one of the 13 best sports cities in the country. —Sporting News, 2005 Denver area and feature popular retail chains, trendy and unique specialty shops, and a variety of service establishments.

There are 14 major shopping centers (500,000 square feet or larger) and numerous shopping districts located throughout the area, with several new projects planned.

Located in central Denver, Cherry Creek Shopping Center, one of the area's top tourist destinations, offers 160 restaurants and stores and is home to exclusive stores such as Saks Fifth Avenue and Neiman Marcus. Downtown

Denver's 16th Street Mall is another popular tourist attraction. The 16-block pedestrian and transitway serves as downtown Denver's retail core and includes the Denver Pavilions. Belmar, the city of Lakewood's downtown district, offers 22 blocks of stores, boutiques, restaurants, entertainment, parks, plazas, offices and residences. Colorado Mills in Lakewood is one of metro Denver's newest malls. The 200- store center features outlet-style retail, entertainment and restaurants. Southlands, a 1.5-million-square-foot shopping center in Aurora, will include 1,100 residential units and office space. Other malls include FlatIron Crossing in northern metro Denver, Park Meadows in Lone Tree, and Southwest Plaza in the southwest metro area.

Denver Night Life

Denver comes alive in the evenings with nightclubs, bars and lounges throughout the metro area for happy hour, dining and music. Many pubs and restaurants feature live entertainment ranging from jazz musicians to belly dancers. Clubs throughout the area play a variety of music, including urban, techno, salsa, jazz, and country and western for those who enjoy dancing. Karaoke bars are open to the amateur vocalist, and professional recording artists and bands frequently tour through metro Denver at one of the many concert venues in the region. For the sports enthusiast, sports bars and entertainment centers in the area have multiple television monitors, billiards tables and interactive games. Denver has seven professional sports teams, as well as collegiate and high school teams. Games take place across the area for those who enjoy spectator sports. Bowling centers also are popular for a night of fun with friends or family. Enjoy discount bowling on special nights, play video games or attend bowling events for teams or extreme bowling. Private rooms are available for parties. Other hotspots include comedy clubs, miniature golf, paintball and racetracks for greyhound, motor and BMX bike racing. Outdoor concerts, festivals and films are popular on weekends, while musical theater, plays and other performing arts entertainment is available nearly every night of the week.
